OPPORTUNITIES

Interestingly, a recent report by Adobe shows that 92% of UK undergraduates now use AI (up from 66% last year), but only 36% have received any training from their institution. Read the full report about AI in Higher Education here.

If you're planning to go to university, you could be eligible for more funding than you think. Explore scholarships, bursaries, and grants matched to your background, achievements, or chosen course, and get support for your study and living costs.

Alongside scholarships, bursaries and grants, you will also be able to apply for Student Finance. EVERYONE in the UK is able to apply. Student finance can be split into two key components:

Maintenance Loan - this is paid to you and is designed to help towards your rent and bills, keep you fed, and cover all your other living expenses while you're in university.
Tuition Loan - Tuition fees are charged by universities and colleges to cover the essential elements of your course. This money is paid straight from Student Finance to the University.

All student loans currently charge interest. This means some people feel unable to use existing student loans for university or college, due to their faith or conscience. This is most common among some Muslims whose faith prohibits engagement with interest. The government has committed to introducing a student finance product with an alternative to interest payments. This new student finance product will be compatible with Islamic finance principles. It will be known as alternative student finance.

If university isn't something you're exploring then you may wish to consider Degree Apprenticeships. They enable you to gain a full undergraduate or master's degree while you work. Degree apprenticeships take three to six years to complete, depending on the course level. You'll spend most of your time working and you'll also study part-time at university. For example, you might go to university one or two days per week, or in short blocks, such as a week at a time. Overall, you spend about 20% of your time studying vs. 80% of your time working.
